

Public Policy, Environmental Justice and the Global South

This course is based on an acknowledgement/recognition of the ever intensifying albeit asymmetric impacts of ecological degradations and the resulting moral injustices that turns it to weighty issues of policy concern, both at the domestic and global levels. By juxtaposing environmental issues with developmental concerns, the course traces the history of how environment became an important policy matter nationally and globally and is designed to introduce students to environmental concerns such as loss of biodiversity, climate change, ozone depletion, bio-safety. The objective is to acquaint them with key policy initiatives- global and national for mitigating environmental impacts thus far.

COORDINATOR

Dr. Maneesha Pandey

COLLABORATOR

Research and Information Systems for Developing Countries (RIS)

DURATION

14
WEEKS

ELIGIBILITY

Students from all academic disciplines as well as from different colleges and Universities in Delhi

SEATS

40